Izumo Ekiden

Article by: yata,sota

The Izumo All-Japan University Selection Ekiden is a relay race held every year on Sports Day (the second Friday of October). This relay race is considered one of the three major university relay aces Hakone Ekiden and the All-Japan University Ekiden, and is the most recent of these.

This relay race starts in front of the torii gate in front of Izumo Taisha Shrine and passes through the city towards its goal, Izumo

Dome. It is the shortest of the three major university relay races at a maximum length of 10.2km per section, and there are not many major ups and downs throughout the course, making it a course where you can expect close races or fast races.

Sierra Leone

Article by: moriyama,sasaki

Look at the photo of the flag above. You've probably seen it before.

Surprisingly, the flag of Sierra Leone is the same as the logo of a certain convenience store. The meaning of this flag is that the green symbolizes natural resources, the white symbolizes unity and justice, and the blue symbolizes Freetown, the capital, which is also a good natural port, and its contribution to world peace through its use.

Surprising fact 2

Look at the photo of the diamond on the above. Sierra Leone used to be rich in ore, and in fact, former Prime Minister

Taro Aso's company even mined there.

Surprising fact 3

Next, look at the table on the right. You will find that Sierra Leone is a fairly short-lived country compared to Japan. In addition, Sierra Leone is one of the poorest countries, with an average annual income of 30,000 yen.
